MinQuest Consultants' Drill Program Services Summary

The team from MinQuest Consultants has successfully managed various drilling programs around the world. Our exploration geologists have the specialist experience required to conduct any type of drilling, in any remote area, or any phase of drilling, and to any level.

We can implement programs from initial target studies; selecting the best rigs for the job; setting up procedures; through to management of drilling for scoping and feasibility studies.

Our team has experience with various commodities, including: gold; copper; base metals; uranium; and iron ore deposits. We can assist our clients to effectively manage their drilling program, however small or large, and deliver the results with verifiable integrity, in a time and cost effective manner. We pride ourselves on conducting ourselves with high professionalism and business ethics.

MinQuest Consultants can be called in at any stage in the drill program sequence to add value to the process. One key contribution is to assess and audit any of the processes that have gone before or are in place at the time of engagement to ascertain weaknesses and inefficiencies in the existing procedures. This systematic approach ensures that corrections are made so that any future work is conducted in the most time and cost-efficient manner. We focus on 14 key processes in any program.
